

Cooking with a Mission

St. Luke Ev. Lutheran Church in Watertown published a cookbook in October 2006 with the goal of helping to raise funds for their Mission Partner ministry in Peru. Every month for a week, missionaries travel from the cities in northern Peru to the Upper Amazon basin, sharing God's Word in cities and towns along the Huallaga River and its tributaries. With no roads available for travel, the missionaries travel the Huallaga by boat, as it winds through this vast region of rainforest. On its banks lies a village where the congregation has constructed a thatch-roof church.

Building relationships through a network of acquaintances and family members, missionaries now work with villages deep in the jungle. In one isolated village, a Christian Elementary School has been established with an enrollment of 25 students. Humanitarian efforts, such as providing dairy cows to assist with malnutrition have also begun.

The goal to which the cookbook proceeds go is $10,000 to build a "jungle-proof" concrete building to house Peruvian men traveling from deep in the jungle to study to become pastors themselves.

The cookbook is titled "Cooking with a Mission" and sells for $12 plus $3 for mailing cost. These are gift quality 3-ring binder style colorful hardcover books. They feature several background pages and photos that describe the Gospel efforts and cultural aspects in Peru. The 500 recipes collected from over 100 experienced cooks within the congregation fall under unique categories that include "Tried 'n True," "Farm Family Favorites," "Must-Have Potluck," "Around the Tailgate," "Sportsman Favorites" "Straight from the Garden" and "Holidays in Wisconsin." 100% of the proceeds will go to Peru.
